

An architectural line drawing of a building facade. The main structure is a large, light-colored rectangle with a grid of windows. The top row has three large, square, double-hung windows. Below this, there are two rows of smaller, rectangular, double-hung windows, with three in each row. To the right of this main structure is a smaller, darker, textured structure, possibly a chimney or a smaller building, with a gabled roof and a single window. The drawing is oriented vertically on the page.

This architectural drawing shows a building facade with several windows. On the left, there are two small square windows and two larger rectangular windows. In the center, there are two large rectangular windows with multiple panes. On the right, there is a textured, possibly tiled, section of the building with a small square window. Below the main facade, there is a section with two small rectangular windows and a larger rectangular window. The drawing is a black and white line drawing.
